

Project: Federation Headquarters
Location: Leatherhead, Surrey
Architect: Corstorphine & Wright
Structural Engineer: BJB Consultancy Ltd
Main Contractor: Dean & Dyball

The Police Federation of England and Wales which represents 140,000 police officers, Sergeants, Inspectors and Chief Inspectors commissioned a new Headquarters building in Leatherhead, Surrey.

The £13m project, which is designed around a central atrium to maximise natural light, brought a number of different uses under one roof, providing the Federation head office, a training and development centre with meeting rooms and a 55 bedroom accommodation wing.

The PCS engineered solution used a number of different precast components including Beam and Column sections along with the typical PCS high quality twin wall elements which were suitable for direct decoration on both sides, obviating the need for plaster finishes.
